THE ELECTION OF SENATOR.—We are a good deal more than half satisfied with the result of the Senatorial election. The success of Gen. M'Kean puts the broad seal of the commonwealth to the condemnation of Martin Van Buren.

Our managers in this city look rather chop fallen. William Lecky, and our neighbor Johns, loom about twice their usual size.—They crow loud ly over the humbled partisans of the New Yorker, in Third street.—The editor of the Mercury would hardly cast a shadow this morning.—As we expected, Robinson, Kerr, and Scott went for the Van Buren man, Crawford.

PENNSYLVANIA REPORTER OFFICE,
Harrisburg, Saturday, Dec. 7, 1833:

This day, the Houses of the Legislature, met in Convention, for the purpose of proceeding to the election of a United States' Senator. The following is the result of the several ballottings, from which it appears that Gen. SAMUEL M'KEAN, was elected on the third vote. Before proceeding to the first vote, Mr. Lacock withdrew the name of John Sergeant; and before proceeding to the second vote, Mr. Geiger withdrew that of H. A. Muhlenberg. Mr. King was not considered a candidate after the first ballot.

From the New Lisbon Palladium.

We learn from a source entitled to credit, that the decision of the delegates in Pittsburgh in favor of the Mahoning rout, has not given satisfaction to the business doing population of that city.—That the Mahoning rout is too circuitous and that it will not answer one single end they had in view, in the contemplanted connection with the Ohio canal.

Without knowing from what source the above information was received, we venture to say that it is incorrect. The decision has given very general satisfaction.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE U. STATES.

FELLOW CITIZENS—I announced, on the 20th ultimo, that at an early day I would appear before you, at least to repel imputations cast upon my character, contained in a publication in the Globe, the official paper of the Executive, of the preceding day.

If the calumnious attack referred to, had not been obviously sanctioned by the President of the United States, such is the character of the newspaper under his protection, that I should not have felt myself called upon to notice it.

In addressing you, I have hesitated between the adoption of a general exposition, and of a brief defensive address, accompanied by that part of the correspondence between the President and myself, which the official paper seems to have challenged me to produce. I adopt the latter course. In the correspondence you will find ample materials for an accurate comprehension of my case—one of insult and oppression.

On the 4th December, 1832, without any solicitation on my part, I was unexpectedly invited to accept the office of Secretary of the Treasury. I sought to shun the station, did not consent to serve until asked for my decision, on the 30th of January, and then consented reluctantly.

No doubt, subsequently to, as before, the adjournment of Congress, speculators, for their own selfish ends, agitated the deposit question, and kept up an excitement felt by the President; but it was never intimated to me that he desired to concentrate in himself the power to judge and execute—to absorb the discretion given to the Secretary of the Treasury—and even to nullify the law itself. I never heard, until after my entry into office, that he meant to remove the deposits, without further inquiry by Congress, or that he had asked the opinion of the members of the cabinet, on the subject; on the contrary, when, after having entered the treasury department, unpledged, untrammeled, and unsuspicious, I was informed of what was meditated, I felt surprise at the intelligence, and mortification at the manner in which it was communicated to me.

On the 3d of June, the President himself made known to me what was in contemplation, and that he had taken the opinions of the members of the cabinet on the point; two of whom concurred with him, two of whom did not concur, and the fifth had not yet given a written opinion. He said he would submit to me the written opinions of the four members of the cabinet, together with his own views, and that he would expect me to give my opinions frankly and fully. As if to urge me to avoid all reserve, he assured me, in a letter dated Boston, June 26, transmitting the opinions and views, that "it was not his intention to interfere with the independent exercise of the discretion committed to me by law over the subject."

But, when, on the 10*th July*, I gave my opinions frankly and fully, as an honest minister and man should do, there was every return but that of approbation. On the contrary, on the 22*d of July*, I was asked whether it was my intention to refuse to remove the deposits, if, after inquiry by an agent and advisement with the cabinet, the President should decide to remove them, as, in such case, it "would become his duty, in frankness and candor, to suggest the course which would be necessary on his part."

Not on my own account, but as an act of duty to the country, I now subjected my pride and feelings to restraint, by tendering, in order to avert a present hostile breach, a future surrender of my post, in case I should not ultimately concur with the President. But, before my concurrence or non concurrence was made known, and whilst I still held in my hands the manuscript exposition, which was read in the cabinet, on the 18*th September*, and then delivered to me by the President for my consideration, he virtually dismissed me as an officer, and insulted me as a man, by causing the official annunciation, hereto appended, No. 1, to be published in the Globe, of the 20th September.

Yet, after this, when it must have been obvious that, independently of other considerations of great weight, I was absolved from all respect for any past assurance, my letter, No. 2, which I personally presented to the President on the 21*st of September*, according to my promise of September 19, was contumeliously sent back to me, in letter No. 3, intimating the existence of improper imputations in mine, No. 2, calling my attention to my assurance of July 22, and inquiring whether I could concur in removing the deposits. From this letter, No. 3, it must be evident that when it was written, my dismissal was not then deemed justifiable, on grounds subsequently suggested; for when the President wrote it, he knew the contents of the letter deemed offensive, and yet he held the correspondence open.

What, then, I ask, subsequently occurred? Instead of treating this new indignity, the return of my letter, with silence, or evincing any other mode of dissatisfaction, I felt that I was on duty at a public post, and that I ought not to suffer it to be taken by surprize. I could not now mistake, in concluding that it was intended to insult me out of office, or to draw from me some expression, which might form a pretext for my removal on a minor point, so doubtful was the President, after all, of the propriety of removing an officer for not yielding, when desired, the discretion given to him by law.

Accordingly, I sent letter No. 4, subsequently withdrawn for alteration, and then letters Nos. 5 and 6—No. 5 especially—because the President did not seem to comprehend me, when, in my letter No. 2, I said, that after what has occurred subsequently to July 22, I felt myself absolved from all obligation to observe the assurances given at that time.

These last appeals, indicative of any thing but bad feeling or disrespect, were also sent back to me, in letter No. 7, declaring my services no longer necessary. I submit to all just men to determine, by whom an assurance was given, and without cause disregarded.

Thus was I thrust from office—not because I had neglected any duty—not because I had differed with the President on any other point of public policy—not because I had differed with him about the Bank of the United States—but because I refused, without further inquiry or action by Congress, to remove the deposits.

If, in my letter No. 2, there is any thing that should not have been there, I ask it to be borne in mind, that it was written under a deep sense of injury and insult.

I appeal to all prior letters and intercourse, to show, that I had not on any occasion forgotten my respect for the Chief Magistrate, or for myself; and I deny that, in any letter, there was inaccuracy of fact, with my knowledge.

As I considered my removal inevitable, I asked, in my personal interview, and by letter No. 6, such order, as when shown to the representatives of the people, would be my apology for leaving the station under my care. Had such order been given, all subsequent unpleasantness would have been prevented; for the present result, I am not accountable.

If any doubt existed as to the propriety of submitting the annexed letters to the public eye, it is removed by example set by the President in the attack which he has sanctioned, and against which this is my defence.

I appeal to the justice and generosity of all publishers of newspapers, who have inserted therein the attack upon me, whether I have not a claim upon them to allow me to be heard, by publishing the present letter, and the annexed documents.

Very respectfully yours,
W. J. DUANE.

Philadelphia, December 2, 1833.

APPENDIX—No. 1.

From the Globe, of Sept. 20, 1833.

"We are authorized to state, that the deposits of the public money will be changed, from the Bank of the United States to the State Banks, as soon as necessary arrangements can be made for that purpose, and that it is believed they can be completed in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston, in time to make the change by the first of October, and perhaps sooner, if circumstances should render an earlier action necessary on the part of the Government.

"It is contemplated, we understand, not to remove at once, the whole of the public money now on deposit in the Bank of the United States, but to suffer it to remain there until it shall be gradually withdrawn by the usual operation of the Government. And this plan is adopted in order to prevent any necessity, on the part of the Bank of the United States, for pressing upon the commercial community; and to enable it to afford, if it think proper, the usual facilities to the merchants. It is believed, that by this means the change need not produce any inconvenience to the commercial community, and that circumstances will not require a sudden and heavy call on the Bank of the United States, so as to occasion embarrassment to the institution or the public.

The Secretary of the Treasury to the President of the United States.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Sept. 21st, 1833.

SIR—I have the honor to lay before you—

1. A copy of my commission, empowering and enjoining me to execute my duty, according to law, and authorizing me to hold my office at your pleasure.
2. A copy of my oath of office, wherein I solemnly pledged myself to execute the trust confided to me with fidelity.
3. A copy of the 16th section of the law chartering the Bank of the U. States, whereby the discretion to discontinue the deposits of the public money in that bank, were committed to the Secretary of the Treasury alone.
4. An extract from your letter to me of the 26th of June, wherein you promise not to interfere with the independent exercises of the discretion, committed to me by (the above mentioned) law, over the subject.
5. An extract from your exposition of the 18th inst., wherein you state, that you do not expect me, at your request, order, or dictation, to do any act which I may believe to be illegal, or which my conscience may condemn.

When you delivered to me, on the 18th inst. the exposition of your views, above referred to, I asked you whether I was to regard it as direction, by you to me, to remove the deposits: you replied that it was your direction to me to remove the deposits, but upon your responsibility; and you had the goodness to add, that, if I would stand by you, it would be the happiest day of your life.

Solemnly impressed with a profound sense of my obligations to my country and myself, after painful reflection, and upon my own impressions, unaided by any advice such as I expected, I respectfully announce to you, Sir, that I refuse to carry your directions into effect.

1. Not because I desire to frustrate your wishes, for it would be my pleasure to promote them, if I could do so, consistently with superior obligations.
2. Not because I desire to favor the Bank of the U. States, to which I have ever been, am, and ever shall be opposed.
3. Not to gratify any views, passions, or feelings of my own—but
4. Because I consider the proposed change of the depository, in the absence of all necessity, a breach of the public faith.
5. Because the measure, if not in reality, appears to be vindictive and arbitrary, not conservative or just.
6. Because, if the bank has abused or perverted its powers the judiciary are able and willing to punish; and in the last resort, the Representatives of the people may do so.
7. Because the last House of Representatives of he U. States pronounced the public money in he Bank of the U. States safe.
8. Because, if under new circumstances, a change of depository ought to be made, the representatives of the people, chosen since your appeal to them in your veto message, will in a few weeks assemble, and be willing and able to do their duty.
9. Because a change to local and irresponsible banks will tend to shake public confidence, and promote doubt and mischief in the operations of society.
10. Because it is not sound policy in the Union to foster local banks, which, in their multiplication and cupidity, derange, depreciate, and banish the only currency known to the constitution, that of gold and silver.
11. Because it is not prudent to confide, in the crude way proposed by your agent, in local banks, when on an average of all the banks, dependent in a great degree upon each other, one dollar in silver cannot be paid for six dollars of the paper in circulation.
12. Because it is dangerous to place in the hands of a Secretary of the Treasury, dependent for office on executive will, a power to favor or punish local banks, and consequently make them political machinery.
13. Because the whole proceeding must tend to diminish the confidence of the world in our regard for national credit and reputation, inasmuch as, whatever may be the abuses of the directors of the bank of the U. States, the evil now to be endured must be borne by innocent persons, many of whom, abroad, had a right to confide in the law that authorized them to be holders of stock.
14. Because I believe that the efforts made in various quarters to hasten the removal of the deposits, did not originate with patriots or statesmen, but in schemes to promote selfish and factious purposes.
15. Because it has been attempted by persons and presses known to be in the confidence and pay of the administration, to intimidate and constrain the Secretary of the Treasury, to execute an act in direct opposition to his own solemn convictions.

And now, sir, having, with a frankness that means no disrespect, and with such feelings as I lately declared them to be, stated to you, why I refuse to execute what you direct, I proceed to perform a necessarily connected act of duty, by announcing to you, that I do not intend voluntarily to leave the post which the law has placed under my charge, and by giving you my reasons for so refusing.

It is true that, on the 22d of July, you signified in language sufficiently intelligible, that you would then remove me from office, unless I would consent to remove the deposits, on your final decision; it may also be true that I should then have put it to the test; and it is also true, that under a well grounded assurance, that your bank plan, the only one then embodied in the instructions drawn up by me for your agent, would be, as it proved, abortive, that for this and other causes, you would be content, I did state my willingness to retire, if I could not concur with you.

But I am not afraid to meet the verdict of generous men, upon my refusal, on reflection, and after what has since occurred, to do voluntarily what I then thought I never should be asked to do. If I had a frail reputation, or had any sinister purpose to answer, I might be open to censure, for a neglect of punctilious delicacy; but I can have no impure motives, much less can I attain any selfish end: I barely choose between one mode of retirement and another: and I choose that mode which I should least of all have preferred, if I had not exalted and redeeming considerations in its favor.

I have, besides, your own example; I do not say, that after you had promised "not to interfere with the independent exercise of the discretion vested in me by law," you were wrong in interfering, if you really thought the public welfare a superior consideration to a mere observance of assurances made to me; nor can you say that I err, when upon a solemn sense of duty, I prefer one mode of removal from this station to another.

The course is due to my own self preservation, as well as to the public, for you have, in all your papers, held out the assurance, that you would not "interfere with the independent exercise of the discretion committed to me by law," over the deposits; and yet, every thing but actual removal from office under it, has been done to effect that end. So that, were I to go out of office voluntarily, you might be able to point to official papers, that would contradict me, if I said you interfered, and I should thus be held up as a weak or faithless agent, who regarded delicacy not shown to himself, more than duty to his trust.

Sir, after all, I confess to you, that I have had scruples, for it is the first time that I have ever condescended to weigh a question of the kind: but I am content, that it shall be said of me, that in July last, I forgot myself, and my duty too, rather than that it should be said that, now, knowing the course that you would pursue, I had in any way favored it; on the contrary, if I have erred, I am willing to be reproved, but my motives no man can impugn.

My refusal to resign cannot keep me, one moment longer than you please, in an office that I never sought, and at a removal from which I shall not grieve on my own account; it must, on the contrary, hasten my exit. So that, if you shall proceed in wresting from the Secretary of the Treasury the citadel in his possession, the act can only be accomplished by a mandate, which will be my apology for no longer standing in the breach.

And now, sir, allow me to repeat to you, in sincerity of heart, that in taking the present course, under a solemn sense of my obligations, I feel a sorrow on your account far greater than on my own: I have been your early, uniform, and steadfast friend; I can have no unkind disposition, but shall cherish those of a kind nature, that I feel. You proudly occupy the hearts of your countrymen; but still it is the lot of humanity, at times, to err. I do ample justice to your motives, but I am constrained to regret your present proceedings; and I devoutly wish, that you may live to see all my forebodings contradicted, and your measures followed by results beneficial to your country, and honorable to yourself.

With the utmost consideration,
Your obedient servant,
W. J. DUANE.

No. 3.

The President of the United States to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Washington, Sept. 21, 1833.

SIR—After you retired, I opened and read the paper you handed to me: I herewith return it, as a communication which I cannot receive. Having invited the free and full communication of all your views, before I made up a final opinion upon the subject, I cannot consent to enter into further discussion of the question.

There are numerous imputations in the letter, which cannot, with propriety, be allowed to enter into a correspondence between the President and the head of a department. In your letter of July last you remark—"But if, after receiving the information and hearing the discussion, I shall not consider it my duty, as a responsible agent of the law, to carry into effect the decision that you may then make, I will, from respect to you, and for myself, afford you an early opportunity to select a successor, whose views may accord with your own on the important matter in contemplation." My communication to my cabinet was made under this assurance received from you; and I have not requested you to perform any thing which your sense of duty did not sanction. I have merely wished to be informed, whether, as Secretary of the Treasury, you can, consistently with your opinion on the subject of the deposits, adopt such measures in relation to them, as in my view, the public interests, and a due execution of the laws, render proper.—If you will now communicate that information, it will confer an obligation on

Your obedient servant,
(Signed) ANDREW JACKSON.

No. 4.

The Secretary of the Treasury to the President of the United States.

Treasury Department, Sept. 21, 1833.

SIR—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note, returning the communication, that I presented to you this morning; the grounds on which it is returned, are, that further discussion of the deposit question is unnecessary, and that there were imputations therein, that could not be admitted into a correspondence between the President and the head of a department.

Allow me respectfully to say, that it was not with a view to a further discussion, that I presented my reasons for declining to act, agreeably to your direction, in removing the deposits, but to justify my refusal; nor was it my desire or intention that any matter contained in my letter should be disrespectful, or open to such a supposition; that any thing therein should be so construed, I very much regret.

My object throughout was to justify the course, on the two points stated in my letter, which, under the most solemn impressions, I felt it to be my duty to pursue.

To show you my obligations, I presented a copy of my commission, a copy of my oath of office, and a copy of the law giving the Secretary of the Treasury the discretion to change the public depository; to show you upon what I relied, in my course of conduct, I quoted your letter of June 26th, and your exposition of the 18th instant. In order to justify my refusal to resign, I described the circumstances under which your letter of July 22, and my reply of the same date, were written, and showed the new posture in which I was placed by subsequent reflection and occurrences.

When I entered your administration, I had no knowledge that you had come to any decision on the deposit question, or that you meditated a change of depository without the action of Congress.

As soon as I was made acquainted with your views, I anxiously sought to accord with them: and as you invited a full disclosure of my thoughts, by assuring me in your letter of the 26th of June, that you did not intend to interfere with the independent exercise of the discretion committed to me by law over the deposits, I opened myself freely to you, against any change of the depository; at all subsequent stages, although I have kept myself open to explanation, I have invariably declined to make that change, and I remain in the same resolution still.

Permit me respectfully to say, that I am not aware that my willingness or unwillingness to afford you an opportunity to select a successor, could have had any influence or bearing upon any question before the cabinet; but I am willing to meet that consideration, as well as those stated to you this day in our interview.

In short, Sir, as I stated to you in that interview, my course is justificatory towards you: I desire no unkind feeling, I have no unkind purpose; however ardent or unusual my language may be, it is at least sincere.

Allow me, then, very respectfully, to state, as declared at our interview, that, under the most serious convictions of my duty, I refuse to aid, assist, or in any way participate in the proposed change of the public depository—that I refuse to relinquish a post conferred upon me by the law—and that, without in the most remote degree meaning any sort of disrespect to you, I protest against any interference, on your part, with powers and duties, which, I believe, were designedly withheld from the President, and committed to the Secretary of the Treasury, the fiscal agent of the law.

With fervent wishes that your measures may conduce to the advantage of your country, and to the honor of yourself,

I am, with the utmost consideration,
Your obedient servant,
W. J. DUANE.

No. 5.

The Secretary of the Treasury to the President of the United States.

Treasury Department, Sept. 21, 1833.

SIR—Allow me, with great respect, to present to you another view in addition to those stated in my letter of this date.

If I understand your wish, as it is to be collected from your note of this date, which I have just now again perused, it is to hold me, upon principles of delicacy at least, to my assurance of July 22d, that, unless I agreed with your decision, after inquiry and discussion, I would promptly afford you an opportunity to obtain a successor according in your views.

I pray you dispassionately to consider, whether you did not absolve me, even upon principles of delicacy, from all obligation upon this view of the matter.

1. On Wednesday, Sept. 18th, I signified, in cabinet, my desire to take and examine your exposition; you gave it to me, saying, in reply to my inquiry as to your direction, that I was to consider myself directed to act on your responsibility.

2. On Thursday morning, Sept. 19th, you applied to me to know if I had come to a decision, and I returned by your messenger, who brought your note, this reply.

"To the President of the United States:

"SIR—Upon a matter that deeply concerns not only myself, but all who are dear to me, I have deemed it right, as I have not a friend here to advise with, to ask the counsel of my father at this crisis; I wrote to him last night, and am sure that nothing but sickness will prevent his presence to morrow night; on the next day, I trust that I shall be able to make a communication to you. With the utmost respect, your obedient servant,

"WM. J. DUANE.

"September 19th, 1833."

3. On the same day, Thursday, 19th Sept., your private Secretary, Major Donelson, called on me to say, that you proposed to publish, in the Globe, of next day, your decision: I replied that I thought you ought not, that I was not a party to it, and, as a matter of delicacy to myself, could not approve of it.

Lest words should be forgotten, I wrote and delivered to Major Donelson this reply:

"A. J. Donelson, Esq.—

"Dear Sir—The world is so censorious, that I am obliged, upon reflection, to express to you my hope, that you will not regard me as approving of any publication: it would seem to be but delicate to defer such an act, until I shall either concur or decline; however, all that I desire to have understood, is, that I do not approve of the course you mentioned. Were I the President, I would consult, at least reasonably, the feelings of a man who has already anxiety enough. As to the newspapers, they will know what has been done, without an official communication.

"Very respectfully yours,
"W. J. DUANE.

"September 19, 1833."

4. In the Globe of Friday, Sept. 20, you caused it to be announced to the world, that the die was cast; thus altogether disregarding the rights of the Secretary of the Treasury, and my own feelings and fame, and refusing besides to wait even until the next day, to receive my decision.

Allow me, therefore, very respectfully, but confidently, to say, that I was thus discharged from any sort of obligation, or respect for, or on account of the past.

You gave me no opportunity to let you know, whether I would or would not afford you an opportunity to choose a successor; in short, the Secretary of the Treasury was, as far as an executive act would do it, nullified; and I hold it, therefore, that, after such a course, I may stand before my country, acquitted of any disregard even of delicacy.

Trusting, sir, that you will be so good as to permit this to enter into your consideration, with my former note of this date, and that we may close, without discredit to either, the pending matter.

I am, with the utmost consideration, your ob't serv't,
W. J. DUANE.

No. 6.

The Secretary of the Treasury to the President of the United States.

Treasury Department, Sept. 21, 1833.

SIR—As you had not, in any written communications, given a direction as to the deposits, but, on the contrary, had left the action to the Secretary of the Treasury as a matter of option, I deemed it my duty, when I had the honor to receive from you, your exposition of the 18th inst. to ask you, whether I was to consider myself directed to remove the deposits, and you replied that I was directed on your responsibility.

I was preparing to lay before you an exposition of our relative position and views, from the first moment of my entry into your administration, when your decision was authoritatively announced in the Globe—a proceeding unsanctioned by me, that rendered all further discussion needless, and any attempt of the kind, derogatory to myself.

A communication, justificatory of my course under present circumstances, which I delivered to you yesterday, having been returned, on account of alleged objectionable matter therein, the presence of which, if disrespectful, I regret, it now becomes my duty, in reply to your letter returning that communication, respectfully to announce my unwillingness to carry your direction as to the deposits into effect; and in making known that decision, without meaning any sort of disrespect, to protect myself, by protesting against all that has been done, or is doing, to divest the Secretary of the Treasury, of the power to exercise, independently of the President, the discretion committed to him by law over the deposites.

I have already, sir, on more than one occasion, and recently, without contradiction, before the cabinet, stated that I did not know, until after my induction into office, that you had determined, that the deposits should be removed without any further action by Congress; if I had known that such was your decision, and that I should be required to act, I would not have accepted office. But as soon as I understood, when in office, what your intention was, I sought for all information calculated to enable me to act uprightly in the embarrassing position in which I was unexpectedly placed.

You were so good as to transmit to me, to that end, from Boston, not only the opinions of the members of the cabinet, but your own views in detail, upon the deposit question; but instead of intimating to me, that my disinclination to carry those views into effect, would be followed by a call for my retirement, you emphatically assured me, in your letter of the 26th June, that you "did not intend to interfere with the independent exercise of the discretion, committed to me by law over the subject."

Fully confiding in the encouragement thus held out, I entered into the exposition of my objections to the proposed measure. Discussion ended in an understanding that we should remain uncommitted until after an inquiry, which your agent was to make, should be completed, and until the discussion of the cabinet. But pending the preparation for this inquiry, I received your letter of July 22d, conveying what I understood to be an intimation that I must retire, unless I would then say that I would remove the deposits, after the inquiry and discussion, in case you should then decide to have them removed.

I would have at once considered this letter as an order to retire, and would have obeyed it, if I had not thought it my duty to hold the post entrusted to me, as long as I could do so with benefit to the country, and without discredit to myself; instead, therefore, of retiring voluntarily or otherwise, I subjected my feelings to restraint, and stated, as you quote in your letter of this day, that, if I could not, after inquiry and discussion, as the responsible agent of the law, carry into effect the decision that might be made, I would afford you an opportunity to select a successor, &c.

Under these circumstances, the inquiry was entered upon: it ended in showing, as I had predicted, that the plan submitted to me on the 26th June was impracticable, and in a report without any defined substitute, according to my comprehension of it.

After a consideration of the subject, in the cabinet, you gave directions, as stated at the commencement of this letter, and I wrote to you that I would make a communication on Saturday, 21st inst., and I accordingly did so, as herein before stated.

Unto the present time, therefore, I have been struggling, under painful circumstances, not to retain a post that I never sought, and the loss of which I shall not regret on my own account, but to maintain it for the country, under a serious sense of duty to it, and to avert a measure that I honestly feared might affect yourself.

Without entertaining or desiring to manifest towards you, Sir, the slightest disrespect, but solemnly impressed with a consideration of my responsibility to the country, and my duty to myself, I now definitely declare that I will not, in any way, aid or assist to cause the public money to be deposited in any other institution, bank, or place, than that provided by the 16th section of the act chartering the United States Bank, until Congress shall direct or authorize such change to be made, unless good cause shall arise, such as in my judgment does not now exist.

I am further constrained, owing to occurrences and circumstances, that in part have come to my knowledge, or have taken place, of late, to leave it to you Sir, to determine whether I am or am not, any longer to remain a member of your administration.

I sincerely hope and beg, Sir, that you will consider that I owe it to myself, and my family, and my friends, not to leave my course, at this most trying moment of my life, open to doubt or conjecture; that my conduct has already sharpened the dagger of malice, as may be seen in some of the public prints; that you, who have been assailed in so many tender parts, and in whose defence I have devoted many a painful day, ought to make allowance for me, in my present position; that were I to resign, I could meet no calumniator without breach of duty; that I ask such order or direction from you, in relation to my office, as may protect me and my children from reproach, and save you and myself from all present or future pain; that I desire to separate in peace and kindness; that I will strive to forget all unpleasantness, or cause of it; and that I devoutly wish that your measures may end in happiness to your country, and honor to yourself.

With the utmost consideration,
Your obedient servant,
W. J. DUANE.

No. 7.

The President of the United States to the Secretary of the Treasury.

September 23, 1833.

SIR—Since I returned your first letter of September 21st, and since the receipt of your second letter of the same day, which I sent back to you at your own request, I have received your third and fourth letters of the same date. The two last, as well as the first, contain statements that are inaccurate; and as I have already indicated in my last note to you, that a correspondence of this description is inadmissible, your two last letters are herewith returned.

But, from all your recent communications, as well as your recent conduct, your feelings and sentiments appear to be of such a character, that, after your letter of July last, in which you say, should your views not accord with mine, "I will, from respect to you, and for myself, afford you an opportunity to select a successor, whose views may accord with your own, on the important matter in contemplation," and your determination now to disregard the pledge you then gave—I feel myself constrained to notify you that your further services as Secretary of the Treasury are no longer required. I am, respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed) ANDREW JACKSON.

LAND FOR SALE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale, on moderate terms, the following Tract of Land, situated in Butler county, Middlesex township, No. 222—one hundred acres more or less; well timbered, well watered, with a small stream running through the meadow ground, which is first rate; about eight acres of bottom, with from 15 to 20, second bottom; stone coal abounds all round, and no doubt there is plenty on the place.

This tract is situated 9 miles west of Freeport, on the Pennsylvania Canal, and 20 miles north of Pittsburgh, up the Allegheny river; five miles east of Bakerstown, and one mile west of Esquire Anderson's, on the Kittanning road, which, in a very little time will be very valuable. Apply to the proprietor, who resides on the premises.

A Partner Wanted.

THE Subscriber, being possessed of a valuable property in the Borough of Brownsville, in the county of Fayette, and state of Pennsylvania, in a public part of the town, consisting of two and a half lots of ground, bounded by Water street on the north, and the National Road on the south, say 150 feet on each, by 180 feet in depth, on which are erected one large three story Brick Dwelling House, one two story Brick Dwelling House, one Brick Foundry, one three story Stone and Brick Engine Shop; the whole of which are finished for the purposes intended. A considerable business has been and still is carried on in Manufacturing Steam Engines for Steam Boats, Mills, Furnaces, &c. &c.; the Castings for which are made at the foundry; also, other Castings, such as Grates, Stoves, and a variety of other articles, all of which are in demand. The subscriber is fully sensible that an extensive and profitable business could be carried on by an accession of Capital; he therefore wishes to sell one half the above described property to some person as a partner, who would have a few thousand dollars. Brownsville is well situated for such an establishment, being on the Monongahela river, which is navigable the greater part of the year: plenty of good stone coal in the whole vicinity, and in the neighborhood of a number of Furnaces, and as healthy a situation as any in the United States. A further description is deemed unnecessary, as any person wishing to purchase will come and view the premises.

FAIRBANK'S PLATFORM SCALES.

THESE scales are constructed upon an improved principle; are fitted up with great care by the manufacturers, and warranted to weigh with accuracy from half a pound to 12,000. Being placed in, and forming part of, the floor, the process of weighing is performed with ease and facility, while the space they occupy may be improved as a passage way or for other purposes.

The construction of these scales is such that they are little liable to derangement of wear, and their perfect operation will be guaranteed for any reasonable length of time.

The usual objection, that a new method of weighing cannot be safely entrusted to unskilful hands, is obviated by the use of the improved BALANCE, concerning which are the following remarks in the Journal of the Frankiin Institute, of the state of Pennsylvania, for the promotion of the Mechanic Arts, for June, 1833. (Edited by Thos. P. Jones, M. D., late Superintendent of the Patent Office, at Washington, Professor of Mechanics in the Franklin Institute, &c.

"The Messrs. Fairbanks, some time since, obtained a patent for a Platform Weighing Machine, and this mode of adjuating and graduating the Beam of the Balance, and the weights, was devised by them with a view to its employment with the before mentioned machine. We have had an opportunity of examining one of their balances, and have been much pleased with it: this examination, however, was not necessary to the conviction that it possesses a just claim to the character of a real improvement, the whole arrangement being so simple as to enable any person to perceive that it is well adapted to the purpose contemplated, that of facilitating the business of weighing, and more especially of heavy articles."

The subscriber, as Agent, will receive orders for the above Scales, which will be made in this city to order. They can be seen at his Warehouse, No. 84, Front street.

Nov. 8, 1833. MOSES ATWOOD.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscribers, Trustees of the New Philadelphia Society, at Phillipsburgh, Beaver county, Pennsylvania, offer for sale the following property, to wit:

1	tract of land	containing	330 acres
1	do	do	330
1	do	do	67
1	do	do	7
1	do	do	40
other lots, containing about			6

The above lands lie in one body, fronting about two miles upon the Ohio river—immediately opposite the mouth of Big Beaver creek, and the Beaver Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The land is rich, and a part of it under a high state of cultivation—its location pleasant and healthy. The improvements upon the same are valuable, including the town of Phillipsburgh, late the residence of Count Leon, and the New Philadelphia Society. The town contains about 40 Dwelling Houses, now in order; some of them brick houses and two stories high. A large and spacious Hotel, a Store house, Church, a number of Shops, for mechanics, Stables, Barns, and other out houses. Also, two large new buildings, lately erected, but not yet finished, one of brick, the other of frame (the latter suitable for a manufactory) a very extensive public garden, and also fruit trees of various kinds. The property has also attached to it the right of a ferry across the Ohio, which is valuable, and becoming more so every day.

The above property is situated in the midst of a wealthy and prosperous country, distant about 28 miles below Pittsburgh, and one mile from Beaver, the seat of justice for Beaver county—and having a view for many miles up and down the Ohio, and of the country to a great distance around.

The subscribers are confident in saying that few situations could be found, presenting greater facilities to the farmer, mechanic, the manufacturer, and others—a soil rich and productive—the neighborhood abounding in coal—well timbered and watered, and, by means of the Pennsylvania Canal, and steamboat navigation, a cheap and ready conveyance to market, and a communication with other places is ensured.

The property is susceptible of divisions into farms, or for the location of new towns, or for the extension of the present one.

Should it not be sold on or before the first day of January next, it will then be offered at public sale, upon the premises, to the highest and best bidder.

It will be sold in a body, or in parcels, to suit purchasers.

Terms of sale will be reasonable.

Information can be had by enquiring of the subscribers, two of whom live in the neighborhood, and one on the premises.

HAT MANUFACTORY,

NO. 6 ST. CLAIR STREET,
PITTSBURGH.

WILSON & SMITH, from N. York,

RESPECTFULLY inform the citizens of Pittsburgh and the neighboring towns, that they have commenced the manufacture of the above beautiful and elegant article, so much admired and worn throughout Europe, and the principal cities in the United States.

W. & S. beg leave to observe, that, after various experiments, they have at last succeeded in bringing this Hat to the highest state of perfection, and they can assert, with confidence, that in point of color, lightness, elasticity, durability, and general beauty of appearance, they cannot be surpassed by the most expensive Hat that is made. Gentlemen are invited to call and examine them, and judge for themselves.

Wholesale Dealers supplied at the same prices as in the New York markets.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞WELCH MEDICAMENTUM.☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

UTICA, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer s vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes givingt emporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradully increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

TYPE FOUNDRY.

HAVING purchased of Mr. Richard Ronaldson, his long established and very extensive Type Foundry, the subscribers have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of continuing said business, and for the convenience of their friends and patrons, have removed their establishment to a more central part of the city. As it is their intention to keep on hand a good assortment of the best type, and to make such additions and improvements as the taste of the trade and the wants of the country require, they flatter themselves that this establishment will merit a large share of patronage. They have now several founts on hand, which can be furnished at a few hours' notice, and are prepared to make founts of all weights and sizes, from Pearl to 22 lines Pica, including a variety of Ornamental Letter. Their assortment of Cuts, Dashes, Brass Rule, and other Ornaments, will be found to be very extensive, of which specimens will be forwarded to Printers as soon as they can be prepared.

Printing Presses of every description, Printing Ink of the most approved qualities, Composing Sticks, Brass and Common Galleys, Chases, Imposing Stones, Cases, Paper and Press Boards, Standing Presses, Furniture, together with a complete assortment of all articles used in a Printing Office, will be kept constantly on hand.

Small founts, suitable for Book Binders, in great variety, may be had when called for.

Orders from all parts in the Union will be promptly and most carefully attended to, and particularly in supplying sorts for all founts furnished by their predecessors, Binny & Ronaldson, and Richard Ronaldson.

PATENT PLANING MACHINE.—The right to use this valuable machine, invented and patented by William Woodworth, and known as Woodworth's Patent Planing Machine, may be obtained on application to the subscriber for the counties of Allegheny, Butler, Beaver, Washington, Green, Fayette, Somerset, Cambria, Indiana, Jefferson, Clearfield, M'Kean, Warren, Venango, Mercer, Crawford, and Erie, in the State of Pennsylvania. That part of Maryland lying west of the Blue Ridge; all that part of Virginia lying west of the Blue Ridge, except the county of Ohio. The whole of the state of Ohio except the counties of Hamilton, Butler, and Montgomery. The whole of the state of Kentucky, except the counties of Jefferson, Boone, Oldham, Gallatin, and Campbell. The whole of Indiana, except the counties of Floyd, Clark, Jefferson, Dearborn, and Switzerland. The whole of the state of Illinois, and the territory of Michigan. Rights to use the machine in that part of the United States, named above, will be sold by the single county or in larger districts. As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention. state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.
